The Nature of the New Proposal

Brief description of the proposal .

Internal changes to provide a modern open plan ground floor area, provide suitable amenities to the beauty saloon with out customers having to climb stairs to use the welfare facilities .

i.e., To meet and comply with disability access arrangements to facilities.

Provide a first floor apartment to make use of the first floor area which is mostly unused at present, and turn into accommodation which is in shortage in todays town Centres

The extra income it would generate could provide enough funds to preserve the character of this property.

There are no internal original features of either panelling, architraves, shirting , internal doors , Cornish or mouldings. Basically to original features , these were probable removed during early it will remain untouched by this proposal, The main roof will be replaced because of serious maintenance issues raining in etc.

Ley out and re fits through the ages and prior to the building being listed.

There is an added rear single storey extension to the rear many years ago construction single storey to the rear which was probable added mid 1970's We are extending to the rear for a separate access to the first floor so that will not disturb the frontage at all and leave it as original We are also adding to the rear two Conservation roof lights

If we find any hidden features during the refurbishment we will let you know immediately.

Grade II Row of 3 shops. 1908.

Designed by Architects By Edger J Wood and J. Henry Sellers. Who collaborated on many Projects between the years of 1901 and 1914 Not only on Middleton and in the North West and Greater Manchester but also in several towns and cities in West Yorkshire.

The Building itself was designed externally to the frontage with Brick with glazed tile decoration and also one of the first of its kind with reinforced concrete flat roof.

Each of the shops has a replaced shop front and the brickwork of No.33 has been painted.

On the first floor 5- light leaded timber mullion windows are each flanked by tiled pilasters which in turn frame distinctive tiled panels above and below the windows.

The panels incorporate green chevron patterns and each rises above the parapet to be terminated in a parapet with dentil-type motif.

The design is not only extraordinary in its use of the tiled panels but in the early use of a reinforced concrete flat roof.

By checking old records and reading about the Architect in several publications and information from Rochdale archives and listing about the Architect and his numerous designs and also photos of various buildings he designed throughout his career.

Literature There are several book about the Architect Edgar J Wood

An extract from one of them notes:-

In 1922 Edgar E Wood retired to Italy to paint, where died in 1935. With neither students nor family to preserve his reputation, he was quietly forgotten and the modern architecture he had anticipated was taken up by a new generation.

In the 1950s, Edgar Wood was rediscovered by Dr. John H. G. Archer, who has spent a lifetime fostering Wood's architecture and reputation.

Nikolaus Pevsner, the famous art historian and author of the Buildings of England series, subsequently praised Wood as the most progressive of all Edwardian architects whose designs were at the cutting edge of European contemporary architecture.

- Architectural and artistic interest

These are interests in the design and general aesthetics of a place. They can arise from conscious design or fortuitously from the way the heritage asset has evolved. More specifically, architectural interest is an interest in the art or science of the design, construction, craftsmanship and decoration of buildings and structures of all types. Artistic interest is an interest in other human creative skills, like sculpture.

- Historic Interest

An interest in past lives and events (including pre-historic). Heritage assets can illustrate or be associated with them. Heritage assets with historic interest not only provide a material record of our nation's history, but can also provide meaning for communities derived from their collective experience of a place and can symbolise wider values such as faith and cultural identity.

Having described the various interests, assess the level of the general significance of the heritage asset and the particular contribution to that significance of any features which would be affected by the proposal, or of its setting if it, too, is affected by the proposal.

Again in the development of proposals and during works, more information may become available which increases the understanding of the heritage asset, and of its significance. The opportunity may usefully be taken to re-appraise significance in
