ANALYSIS

S.55 of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 sets out:

Subject to the following provisions of this section, in this Act, except where the context otherwise requires, "development," means the carrying out of building, engineering, mining or other operations in, on, over or under land, or the making of any material change in the use of any buildings or other land

In respect of changes of use, Article 3(1) of the Town and Country Planning (Use Classes) Order 1987 sets out "Where a building or other land is used for a purpose of any class specified in the Schedule, the use of that building or that other land for any other purpose of the same class shall not be taken to involve development of the land."

In assessing this application, it is necessary to understand the existing lawful use of the unit proposed to change use and the use class of the proposed use. Where the existing and proposed use do not fall within the same use class, it is necessary to consider whether the proposed use would have a materially different impact on the environment and local amenities.

For the avoidance of doubt, the planning merits of the matters applied for do not fall to be considered. The decision will be based strictly on factual evidence, the history and planning status of the site in question and the application of relevant law or judicial authority to the circumstances of the case.

Additionally, it is noted that in paragraph 006 of the NPPG (Reference ID: 17c-006-20140306), states that 'in the case of applications for proposed development, an applicant needs to describe the proposal with sufficient clarity and precision to enable a local planning authority to understand exactly what is involved.'

The applicant has stated that the building will be used as the residence for a maximum of three children and one adult living at the home full time. There will be additional carers working on shifts however no details of this have been provided

Use Class C2 defines this use for the provision of residential accommodation and care to people in need of care (other than a use within class C3 (dwelling houses)); use as a hospital or nursing home; or use as a residential school, college or training centre. Care is defined in Article 2 of the UCO as meaning:

"personal care for people in need of such care by reason of old age, disablement, past or present dependence on alcohol or drugs or past or present mental disorder, and in class C2 also includes the personal care of children and medical care and treatment."

Established case law provided for by the North Devon District Council v First Secretary of State [2004] judgement in respect of a house used to care for children is applicable to the circumstances of lawful development certificate application. In that, the Court said that 2 children aged between 10 and 17, supported by non-resident carers, could not constitute a household for the purposes of Class C3(b).

In the North Devon case, the property was being used as a home for two children and two non-resident staff were on duty at all times with a shift system operated by 6 to 7 carers to maintain the requisite cover. The application was based on the premise that the children by themselves would constitute a single household with the use falling within Class C3(b).

Crucially, the judge set out that a household needed more than just children, as children: "need to be looked after. They cannot run a house. They cannot be expected to deal with all the matters that go to running a home ... children are regarded as needing full-time care from an adult, someone to look after them, someone to run their lives for them and someone to make sure that the household operates as it should." The Court therefore held that the concept of living together as a household means that a proper functioning household must exist and thus, for the use to fall within Class C3(b), the children and carers must reside in the premises. Otherwise, the use falls within Class C2.

The carer will not have a second address and information submitted with the application states the carer will at this property full time. On the balance of probabilities, and having regard to the supporting information, the building would be used as C2 as the three children will live at the property, one adult will reside full time at the property.

The applicant considered the use of the property to be unlikely to be perceptibly different to that of a normal dwellinghouse, where the use remains residential and would be reflective of a traditional household, with traffic movements being akin to a 'normal dwellinghouse'.

The proposal is not considered to have a negative effect on the surrounding character of the area as the proposal will operate as a normal residential dwelling. No external works are proposed and as the dwelling is in a residential area the proposal will be compatible within the street scene.

The children will attend school during the day and make use of facilities in the surrounding area. No specific details regarding attending school have been provided, this is not considered to be different than a normal household.

There is minimal detail in the supporting statement as to why the children will be placed in this dwelling and does not state if any child would need further care (therapeutic, psychological, educational etc.), however where it has been deemed necessary to remove the child from their familial residence to provide round-the-clock care, it is considered that the needs of the child must be somewhat specialised.

The property has a large driveway. There may be more than two members of staff at the property at once including the resident carer and there may be additional cars if further necessary services are required by visiting professionals. There would also be a reasonable prospect of each child attending different schools or being educated outside a school setting to fulfil their needs, or due to their age. On balance this is considered acceptable as a normal household would have visitors on occasions and there is ample car parking space available.

It is also not considered to increase the risk of crime and anti-social behaviour in the surrounding area as there is no evidence crime would be increased by the presence of this home and its occupiers.

Conclusion

Having regard to the matters above, on balance it is considered that the proposed change of use from C3(a) to C2 is not a material change of use meaning that the change does not constitute development, planning permission is not required, and a lawful development certificate can be granted.

RECOMMENDATION

GRANT UNCONDITIONALLY

1. The proposed use of the building for three children, with carers working on a rota basis, with one present overnight, living together and receiving care would be a change of use from C3 to C2 however the change is not considered to be material, and therefore does not comprise development within the meaning set out within section 55 of the Town and Country Planning Act (1990) and would not require planning permission.
